Although integrating security into the design of applications has proven to deliver resilient products, there are few books available that provide guidance on how to incorporate security into the design of an application. Filling this need, Security for Service Oriented Architectures examines both application and security architectures and illustrates the relationship between the two. Supplying authoritative guidance on how to design distributed and resilient applications, the book provides an overview of the various standards that service oriented and distributed applications leverage, including SOAP, HTML 5, SAML, XML Encryption, XML Signature, WS-Security, and WS-SecureConversation. It examines emerging issues of privacy and discusses how to design applications within a secure context to facilitate the understanding of these technologies you need to make intelligent decisions regarding their design. This complete guide to security for web services and SOA considers the malicious user story of the abuses and attacks against applications as examples of how design flaws and oversights have subverted the goals of providing resilient business functionality. It reviews recent research on access control for simple and conversation-based web services, advanced digital identity management techniques, and access control for web-based workflows. Filled with illustrative examples and analyses of critical issues, this book provides both security and software architects with a bridge between software and service-oriented architectures and security architectures, with the goal of providing a means to develop software architectures that leverage security architectures. It is also a reliable source of reference on Web services standards. Coverage includes the four types of architectures, implementing and securing SOA, Web 2.0, other SOA platforms, auditing SOAs, and defending and detecting attacks. Tony Auth's cartoons, seemingly simple and always direct, have influenced public opinion and politicians for more than 40 years. "Our job is not to amuse our readers," says Auth of a national artistic heritage of editorial cartooning that began with Benjamin Franklin in 1754. "Our mission is to stir them, inform and inflame them." Auth was a fledgling artist from California in 1971 when The Philadelphia Inquirer flew him in for a weeklong job interview as the paper's editorial cartoonist, and thus began a Pulitzer Prize winning legacy of excellence that documents the changing political and cultural landscape of both the Philadelphia region and the world. Now, for the first time, this retrospective book gathers together the full range of Tony Auth's cartoons on a wide variety of subjects. From Lyndon Johnson to Barack Obama, from the energy crisis to the financial crisis, this collection includes cartoons that touched the lives of countless readers in our region and, through syndication, all over America. FinTech, especially digital payments, is a fascinating space. More than trillion dollars' worth of digital payments are done, and we are 'just getting started'. Online payments space is attractive and intriguing to many. A young graduate wants to build a career in this domain, a user wants to know how payments are done and a merchant wants to know the processes. Just like India, full of diversity, even India's payments ecosystem is full of different types of payment instruments, payment service providers, and solutions that adhere to complex processes while getting constantly shaped and re-shaped by Government, RBI, new business models, and other market forces. One can refer RBI website or read Visa documents or NPCI's product specs to learn. But those documents are far too technical and loaded with heavy jargons. The blogs of the FinTech companies are more like sales pitches than giving neutral understanding about the topic. How can one go about learning about this domain? I had that question when I started my career in FinTech. Over the years, I learnt from others and from experience. Based on my learnings, I started a blog 'Auth n Capture'. After more than 2 years and ~60 articles later, here I am writing this book. This book is a beginner's guide for FinTech enthusiasts and professionals to understand the basics of India's payments ecosystems. What am I, a chief investment officer of one of the country's largest investment managers, doing hailing down strangers at night on the streets of New York City? "Are you Catholic?" my friends and I ask. "Would you like a rosary? Would you like to go to confession here tonight?" "Are you kidding?" responds one man. "Been there, done that!" says another. "God, no!" chimes in a fast-walking atheist. "You Catholics are all pedophiles!" yells one angry woman. Another hands us a bag of dog poop. Sixty-year-old Michael even has advice: "Why don't you evangelize out in the Middle East, where they need you?" "We're needed here," we respond. "This city needs Jesus, too. It needs His love." * Some nights the tide turns in the Lord's favor. A young woman approaches us, decked out in showy attire. "Are you guys really Catholic? I didn't think there were any Catholics left! Can I have a purple rosary?" "Sure! Where are you going? We have lots to talk about." "I've got to run! I'm a stripper. But I'm going to pray with this rosary." * At times, the neighborhood even begins rooting for us. Strangers call out: "Way to go!" "Your courage is inspiring!" We're in our groove now, engaging strangers with joy—and seeing some of them later in church. On the rough streets of the City, working shoulder-to-shoulder with Christ, we're no longer alone; we feel God's grace. You will, too, as you read the dozens of riveting – and often funny – stories in these pages, about ordinary Catholics from the financial sector evangelizing their wary New York neighbors. Indeed, so fascinating are their experiences, you may be tempted one day to join them. Vols. 30-54 include 1932-56 of "Victorian bibliography," prepared by a committee of the Victorian Literature Group of the Modern Language Association of America. content that comes with Fedora, saving readers hours of download time Documents 1995 UN Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing. Forty three essays by men and women who attended the conference tell of their experiences and how they've applied what they learned at home. The words of these college presidents, students, teachers, homemakers, retirees, writers, clergy, and entrepreneurs who participated in the UN Fourth World Conference on Women document the remarkable initiative, energy, and vision of those who began and continue to coordinate the activities of Pittsburgh/Beijing '95 and Beyond. Auth also offers background information on the three previous UN Women's Conferences, outlines the work that has been accomplished since the 1995 conference, and the plans for implementing the Beijing Platform for Action at the local level. Her remarks and the stories she has collected offer an intimate portrayal of an historical event that was largely under-
